

News and Citizen.

MORRISVILLE AND HYDE PARK.
Thursday, March 22, 1894.

L. H. LEWIS, - EDITOR.

Premier Roseberry characterizes the House of Lords as a "degenerate organization led by one man."

The Brazilian war is once more said to be over. It has a way coming to an end about every thirty days.

A newspaper cannot be run to suit the individual taste of its readers. It should be treated as a bill of fare—you take the things you like and leave the others to die.

W. D. McMaster of the Woodstock Age gets his old position as postmaster. A pretty strong Democrat, yet without a very genial fellow is Brer McMaster, and the entire State congratulates him on again getting into clover.

Some say that there won't be much stir in Vermont over the lieutenant-governorship question until the candidates get through making maple sugar.—Poultry Journal.

This may be true, but it is well to remember that the sugar season is several weeks earlier than usual this year.

The 90th birthday of Gen. Neal Dow, the great temperance apostle, was celebrated in New York last Sunday by a monster prohibition rally. Probably no one man, unless it be the late John B. Goff, has done more for the temperance cause than Gen. Dow, and from thousands of homes, as well as individuals, go up sincere thanks that the venerable patriarch has been spared so many years beyond the ordinary allotment to man. The name of Neal Dow will go down through time as one of the greatest and grandest men of the nineteenth century.

The New York Sun (Dem.) in discussing the place for holding the next Democratic National Convention, says the party would be utterly lost to shame to go to Chicago, again where the last platform was made. It adds that if, in addition to their betrayal of the party on the tariff question, "the Democratic Congress and the Democratic Administration succeed in loading the Democracy with the Populist income tax, as demanded by Populists in their platform, then the next National Convention of the Democrats will be held in the heart of the Dismal Swamp. The dismal swamp discovered in the Dismal Swamp by the violet explorers would be the proper place for that function."

The silver seigniorage bill is the only measure yet enacted by the new Democratic Congress embodying a positive financial policy, the purchase of silver being only negative legislation, abolishing certain provisions of law. Beginning the record by "coming a vacuum" is a mighty poor exhibition of Democratic functioning.

Governor Brown of Rhode Island has been renominated by the Legislature of that State. He is serving his first term of office. With a Gray, a Brown and a White on the bench of the United States supreme court, a Gray and a White in the cabinet, a Black, one Brown and a White in the House, and three Gov. Browns, American public life cannot be said to lack color.

A scheme to break up the spoils system has been evolved in Congress, this time by Representative Bailey of Texas, who proposes to introduce a bill forbidding members to recommend to the President the appointment of any person to public office. Congressmen have said that they desire relief from the burden of obtaining offices for their constituents. This proposition of Mr. Bailey will do the business, if embodied in a proper statute, and no harm could result from its public interest from its adoption.

DEMOCRATIC TIMES THEN AND NOW.—The government receipts from customs duties since June 30, 1893, have fallen to $92,000,000 from $138,000,000 during the corresponding period a year ago; and a deficit is the condition which now confronts us. This is anti-democratic. In 1893, when Andrew Johnson was President, there was a balance of $26,000,000 in the Treasury at the close of the year. The year 1894, the deficit of the United States was only $37,000,000, the year's interest upon it was $328,200, and the receipts from customs, which were $1,000,000 in excess of the entire Federal expenses.

CASH OUT OF POCKET.—Reports to the insurance commissioner from all insurance companies doing business in Vermont in 1893 have just been made public. They show the following condition: Total risks written, $46,626,748; premiums received, $753,512; losses paid, $1,000,000. Of the Vermont companies' policies were $209,650 and losses $139,120, the percentage of loss being 65% compared with the State average of 55%. The Vermont business was 35% per cent. of the premiums, leaving the loss to companies of other States at $124 for every $100 received. In 1891 and 1892 they lost $122 for each $100.

IT WOULD SEEM THAT DANIEL WEBSTER—Daniel Webster contended that one of the chief, if not the chief, purposes for which the Revolutionary war was fought and our independence won was to make it possible to protect American industry against the crushing competition of British manufacturers. It is the duty of a hundred years afterward it should be deliberately proposed by men who call themselves Americans to take a foreign commercial vote against our necks after a century of protection has raised the United States to the place of foremost manufacturing nation on the planet. These foreigners who envy and hate us for our prosperity must be as such antagonized and are gratified by the inability of our national administration.—Boston Journal.

The meetings of the board of Agriculture in the various towns in the state have been of great assistance to the farmers of Vermont, and ought to result in our increasing our butter average till we reach the 200 mark at least. This can be done by improving the breed of our herds, and making better preparations for the winter in the way of housing, feed and drink.—Vermont Farmer.

The Lieutenant-Governorship.

Concurrent opinion having settled upon Col. U. A. Woodbury of Burlington for Vermont's next Governor attention is now being turned to the Lieutenant-Governorship. Opinions are strongly at variance as to the right man for this office and a right smart contest is likely to be had before its incumbent is chosen.—Fairfax Journal.

Woodbury and Mansur! Each with an empty sleeve, but possessing heads full of brains and common sense. Attributes that are essential to the positions they are likely to occupy ere long.—Bradford Opinion.

When the proper time arrives we respectfully suggest that probably Col. Z. M. Mansur's friends in Essex County and elsewhere in the State will have a word to say on this most interesting question of the Lieutenant-Governorship.

Express and Standard. The papers which name B. F. Lincoln as Republican for Lieutenant-Governor will do the state a good service if they succeed in securing his nomination. He is not a talker but he is a doer, and never accepts a charge of any kind to which he does not give earnest, competent and faithful service. He is a self-made man, self-reliant, has the courage of his conviction, is true to his principles, and believes in honest government.

Some say that there won't be much stir in Vermont over the lieutenant-governorship question until the candidates get through making maple sugar.—Poultry Journal.

This may be true, but it is well to remember that the sugar season is several weeks earlier than usual this year.

The 90th birthday of Gen. Neal Dow, the great temperance apostle, was celebrated in New York last Sunday by a monster prohibition rally. Probably no one man, unless it be the late John B. Goff, has done more for the temperance cause than Gen. Dow, and from thousands of homes, as well as individuals, go up sincere thanks that the venerable patriarch has been spared so many years beyond the ordinary allotment to man. The name of Neal Dow will go down through time as one of the greatest and grandest men of the nineteenth century.

The New York Sun (Dem.) in discussing the place for holding the next Democratic National Convention, says the party would be utterly lost to shame to go to Chicago, again where the last platform was made. It adds that if, in addition to their betrayal of the party on the tariff question, "the Democratic Congress and the Democratic Administration succeed in loading the Democracy with the Populist income tax, as demanded by Populists in their platform, then the next National Convention of the Democrats will be held in the heart of the Dismal Swamp. The dismal swamp discovered in the Dismal Swamp by the violet explorers would be the proper place for that function."

The silver seigniorage bill is the only measure yet enacted by the new Democratic Congress embodying a positive financial policy, the purchase of silver being only negative legislation, abolishing certain provisions of law. Beginning the record by "coming a vacuum" is a mighty poor exhibition of Democratic functioning.

Governor Brown of Rhode Island has been renominated by the Legislature of that State. He is serving his first term of office. With a Gray, a Brown and a White on the bench of the United States supreme court, a Gray and a White in the cabinet, a Black, one Brown and a White in the House, and three Gov. Browns, American public life cannot be said to lack color.

A scheme to break up the spoils system has been evolved in Congress, this time by Representative Bailey of Texas, who proposes to introduce a bill forbidding members to recommend to the President the appointment of any person to public office. Congressmen have said that they desire relief from the burden of obtaining offices for their constituents. This proposition of Mr. Bailey will do the business, if embodied in a proper statute, and no harm could result from its public interest from its adoption.

DEMOCRATIC TIMES THEN AND NOW.—The government receipts from customs duties since June 30, 1893, have fallen to $92,000,000 from $138,000,000 during the corresponding period a year ago; and a deficit is the condition which now confronts us. This is anti-democratic. In 1893, when Andrew Johnson was President, there was a balance of $26,000,000 in the Treasury at the close of the year. The year 1894, the deficit of the United States was only $37,000,000, the year's interest upon it was $328,200, and the receipts from customs, which were $1,000,000 in excess of the entire Federal expenses.

CASH OUT OF POCKET.—Reports to the insurance commissioner from all insurance companies doing business in Vermont in 1893 have just been made public. They show the following condition: Total risks written, $46,626,748; premiums received, $753,512; losses paid, $1,000,000. Of the Vermont companies' policies were $209,650 and losses $139,120, the percentage of loss being 65% compared with the State average of 55%. The Vermont business was 35% per cent. of the premiums, leaving the loss to companies of other States at $124 for every $100 received. In 1891 and 1892 they lost $122 for each $100.

IT WOULD SEEM THAT DANIEL WEBSTER—Daniel Webster contended that one of the chief, if not the chief, purposes for which the Revolutionary war was fought and our independence won was to make it possible to protect American industry against the crushing competition of British manufacturers. It is the duty of a hundred years afterward it should be deliberately proposed by men who call themselves Americans to take a foreign commercial vote against our necks after a century of protection has raised the United States to the place of foremost manufacturing nation on the planet. These foreigners who envy and hate us for our prosperity must be as such antagonized and are gratified by the inability of our national administration.—Boston Journal.

The meetings of the board of Agriculture in the various towns in the state have been of great assistance to the farmers of Vermont, and ought to result in our increasing our butter average till we reach the 200 mark at least. This can be done by improving the breed of our herds, and making better preparations for the winter in the way of housing, feed and drink.—Vermont Farmer.

Remember it takes ten cents and a coupon out of this paper to secure "The Magic City." No use of sending the ten cents alone. If you haven't the coupon send fifteen cents, and we would rather not have that, as we are handing these books especially for our subscribers.

Mr. P. Kent is moving to his place at the Col. H. Kellogg Jr. is reported dangerous only. Dr. F. McKee of Montpelier is attending him.

Samuel Sloan and Miss Belle Drinkwater are still quiet.

Mane Sloan who has been quite ill with diphtheria, is now convalescing.

Wm. H. Kellogg Jr. is reported dangerous only. Dr. F. McKee of Montpelier is attending him.

Hiram Emerson has traded his farm for a place in Barre, and has moved his family there.

The best thing out—out of debt.

STATE ITEMS.

The building of the Rutland hospital will be begun in May.

Rev. Elisha Snow of White River Junction is expected to deliver the Memorial Day address at Rochester.

Rev. Henry Ballou of Burlington will deliver the Memorial Day address at White River Junction.

Alpha Messer, Master of the State Grange, will deliver the Memorial Day address at White River Junction.

Reports of annual town meetings from the principal towns in the State indicate that the average tax will be about 12 cents on a dollar.

The highest tax is 300 cents in the town of Ripton; Bridgewater assesses $20 cents; Middlesex assesses 220 cents; Greenfield assesses 200 cents; Newbury assesses 20 cents; Newbury assesses 20 cents; Brattleboro assesses 20 cents.

In connection with a magnificent charity bazaar, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor, will be a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

There is a bazaar for the benefit of the Vermont Soldiers' Home, to be held at the Hotel Vermont, by Mr. E. Kelley of the Hotel Proctor.

Memorial Day.

THE USUAL ORDER BY COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF ADAMS.

Commander-in-Chief John G. B. Adams of the Grand Army Order has issued the following Memorial Day order:

Whereas, the anniversary of the death of our brave soldiers and sailors who died in the defense of our country, is observed on Memorial Day, 1894, it is the order of the Grand Army Order, that on that day, the following observances be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

First. That the Grand Army Order, and its branches, shall observe the day by holding a public service, at which the following program shall be observed:

The Dolbeer-Goodall Co.'s Annual Dinner.

The annual dinner of the Dolbeer-Goodall Company, proprietors of Mellin's Food, to their heads of departments and traveling men, was given on the 6th of December, 1893, at the Parker House, Boston.

In response to the chairman of the company, Mr. Dolbeer, the president of the company, all of the traveling men had turned from their different fields of labor, and had come together in Boston, the headquarters of the business, each to make systematic and detailed report of his past year's work and to discuss with the home management the methods, plans and efforts for his coming year's work.

It was a most national and happy home-coming, and seemed almost like a family gathering, as the freedom of discussion, the quick response to Mr. Dolbeer's request for suggestions, and the enthusiasm shown by all present, told of the cordial relations and perfect confidence existing between the travelers and the manager of the company.

At the dinner, Mr. Dolbeer, the president, had the head of the table; next to him, Mr. Goodall, the vice-president; Mr. Chas. M. Dolbeer, Mr. Delano, the right, and Mr. Hazeltine, the left. Messrs. Cox, Snyder, Jones, C. M. Phelps, Robbins, Larrabee, Storer and Gould completed the circle. The appearance of the table was strikingly novel, with its pyramid of foliage and its center of flowers of which Mr. Dolbeer is so fond, and the menu and service were all that for two generations have made "Parker's" famous.

After the merrier which always accompanies a good dinner, speeches were made in order, the Mellin's Food men were the first to speak. The dinner had been a success, there was no backwardness in coming forward to carry out this part of the program.

Mr. Stone set the ball rolling with a short but most interesting address, in which he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men, as the backbone of the business, and the necessity of their being well cared for.

Mr. Dolbeer, the president, then spoke, and in his address he pointed out the importance of the traveling men